

SEELY WOULD SACRIFICE HIS PLACE ON CABINET TO END ULSTER CRISIS

PREMIER ASQUITH REFUSES TO ACCEPT BRITISH SECRETARY'S RESIGNATION. GUARANTEE VIOLATED

Parliament Conducts Inquiry into the Resignation of Army Officers in Ireland Resulting in Clashes Between Leaders.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, March 25.—Colonel John Seely today resigned his portfolio as secretary of state for war in the British cabinet. Premier Asquith refused to accept Colonel Seely's resignation. After the sympathetic reception by the house of commons of the secretaries for war's explanation of his actions regarding the army officers in Ireland the premier decided that he would not sacrifice his lieutenant.

Attack on Government.

The house of commons buzzed with excitement and was crowded to its utmost capacity when Lord Charles Bessborough opened the attack on the government by demanding information as to the naval movements in connection with the situation in Ulster.

"Was the battle squadron ordered to steam up full speed from Spanish waters to the Irish coast and ordered to embark field guns?" he asked.

"Amid ministerial cheers and derisive laughter from the unionists Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, first lord of the admiralty, said he was in proximity to the coast of Ireland in case of serious disturbance arising." When it was clear that the military precautionary movements it was decided that this movement of the fleet could be delayed until the Easter leave period of the cruise was over.

Seely's Defense.

Mr. Churchill, continuing his reply to Lord Charles Bessborough, said: "The admiral wanted the field guns in order to exercise his men in case of bad weather."

After a brief sentence or two from Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition, asking for the presentation to the house of the details which had been omitted from the white paper, Colonel Seely opened his defense.

The secretary of state declared he had nothing to conceal and foreboding his impending resignation, said he thought in view of the information received by the government it was necessary to take certain steps to protect the government's depositions. The first lord instructed for this purpose with the full authority of the cabinet.

Churchill Gets Excited.

The statement of the first lord was immediately followed by a cyclone of questions. A unionist member asked if Mr. Churchill expected "that this precautionary movement of troops would lead to fighting." In a moment the first lord flared up.

"I repudiate the hellish suggestion," he shouted.

When the consequent uproar had subsided, the speaker reprimanded Mr. Churchill, saying that such an expression should not have been used, and the storm passed on.

Guarantee to Officers.

Documents made public today disclose officially the fact that the British government gave officers in Ireland a written guarantee that they would not use the army to crush Ulsters' political opposition to the home rule bill.

The correspondence, however, points out that the government retained its right to use the army to maintain law and order.

The orders issued by the war office in respect to the duties of the army in Ireland chiefly in connection with the protection of government stores, arms and ammunition are given very completely. The correspondence, however, omits the verbal communication made by General Sir Arthur Paget to the officers at the Curragh camp which led to their resignations and which the government argues was the result of a "misunderstanding."

Paget's Communication.

The version of Gen. Paget's communication read by Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition, in the house of commons on Monday, was substantially correct, seems clearly indicated. Mr. Law on that occasion read a letter in which Gen. Paget stated that "active operations were to begin against Ulster and that it was expected the country would be in a blaze by Saturday."

The Irish commander-in-chief wrote that he was in close communication with the war office and had received instructions from headquarters to notify his officers that those of them domiciled in Ulster would be allowed to disappear and be afterwards reinstated. They must, however, give their word of honor not to fight for Ulster.

In the published correspondence Brigadier General Gough underlines phrases such as "active operations" and "disappear," instead of being permitted to continue to buldosc accredited representatives of the American people in congress.

Some of the Irish leaders, Senator Lewis and other democratic leaders failed by various parliamentary tactics to prevent the reading of the letter.

Senator Thomas, democrat, interrupted the reading of similar letters in the senate when Senator Jones, "I believe the president to be acting honestly and in accordance with his best judgment," said Senator Jones.

"I simply am reading these letters to show the feeling and indignation among the ordinary people of the country."

Senator Thomas protested against the reading of the letters impugning the motives of the president. He declared senators should make such charges directly.

CARNEGIE ASSAILED IN SENATE DEBATE

Washington, March 25.—"If Andrew Carnegie, who continually asserts the cause of Great Britain, were the citizen of any other nation, he would be charged with treason," declared Senator Chamberlain today in the course of the Panama tolls debate. "He has ever hesitated to open his eyes to the endeavoring to inculcate a reciprocal feeling for Great Britain in the minds of the people of the United States."

Mr. Chamberlain's attack on Mr. Carnegie came as the climax to an hour of hot argument during which Senator Jones, who also opposed a repeal of the tolls exemption, had read under protest, several letters attacking the contention of President Wilson.

The debate was cut off when the subject went over to tomorrow under parliamentary procedure.

The Panama tolls fight cropped out in the senate when Senator Jones, one of those opposing repeal of the exemption, had read a letter from W. B. Larkin of No. 20 Highland street, Boston, assailing President Wilson's contention and saying "the president should be recalled to the classes shades of Princeton instead of being permitted to continue to buldosc accredited representatives of the American people in congress."

HAVE REBELS LOST IN TORREON FIGHT?

MEAGRE REPORTS RECEIVED AT WASHINGTON AND EL PASO INDICATE AS MUCH.

STILL WAGING BATTLE

Last Messages to Juarez Say Fighting Continues With Hopes of Taking Federal Stronghold Within Several Days.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Juarez, March 25.—Fighting is in progress this morning in the outskirts of Torreon.

This was the text of a message from the south given out officially here today. There were no details and no official reports readjusted to the effect that it might be some days before the federal stronghold is taken.

What the situation in the Torreon district might be today was only a matter of speculation. The few rumors that sifted into Juarez during the night and early morning were variously interpreted according to the personal views of the individuals.

Gen. Chao still awaited confirmation of the report that reached here during the night that General Villa's army had captured two fortresses in Torreon. No definite news has come over the wires since the receipt of the American Press dispatch from Chihuahua at 5 p. m. yesterday that fighting still was in progress at Gomez Palatio, the important railway suburb of Torreon.

Make Strong Defense.

Bernillo, Mex., March 25.—(By courier to El Paso.)—Rebels wounded from Gomez Palatio and the lesser recent fights in the vicinity are being brought north in large numbers and it is officially admitted the federal put up an unexpectedly strong resistance at Gomez Palatio.

Report Rebels Repulsed.

El Paso, March 25.—Miguel Diebold of the Mexican federal consular service said today he had been officially informed that the rebels were repulsed with heavy loss at Torreon and that some of them were driven back twenty miles.

Trouble at Las Vegas.

Eagle Pass, Tex., March 25.—Several hundred constitutionalists are reported moving toward Las Vegas, opposite Del Rio, Tex., and a battle is expected between this body of troops and the federal garrison at Las Vegas.

Cable to Washington.

Washington, March 25.—The Mexican embassy has received the following cablegram from the City of Mexico dated last night: "The rebels were repulsed today in an attempt to reach Torreon. Gen. Velasco well prepared for attack."

Execute Terrazas.

El Paso, March 25.—An authoritative private letter dated Chihuahua, March 25, received here today, states that Luis Terrazas, Jr., is to be executed today unless he delivers the equivalent of $250,000 in gold to Gen. Villa.

Await Information.

Juarez, 1:30 a. m., March 25.—At this hour officials were still without authoritative information as to the situation at Torreon. The only news received was confirmation of the report that two cartridges in Torreon had been taken. The last definite news was the American Press dispatches from Chihuahua last night stating that fighting at 5 p. m. yesterday was still in progress at Gomez Palatio.

Terrazas is a son of the one time rich Mexican land owner, who until his lands were confiscated by the rebels and he himself forced to seek safety in the United States, was a leader among the most powerful men under the Diaz regime. Up to the present the prisoner's family believed he was more valuable to the rebels alive than dead. A summary notice that a fixed sum be paid into the rebel treasury within twenty-four hours was served on him last Saturday, but through the efforts of American Consul Marion Letcher the time was extended three days longer.

GOVERNMENT MAKES REPORT ON PROFIT OF RENTING FARMS

Farm Owners Who Rent Property Only Receive Three and a Half Per Cent of Investment.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, March 25.—Popular belief that the farm owner who lives in the city and rents his farm is in the class with predatory plutocrats was given a severe jolt in a bulletin just issued by the Department of Agriculture which shows that the average return from rented farms is but three and one-half per cent on the investment. The size of the farm seems to have no effect on the percentage.

The bureau of farm management which developed these facts studied several hundred farms in Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. States in the corn belt have the highest percentage of almost all other regions in wealth of farm products. In this section modern machinery, with more horses and fewer men, has made the farm less than 100 acres an "inefficient unit."

Further readjustment is constantly taking place tending to lessen the number of persons needed and to increase the net productions of the farm.

The average labor income of the farm owners operating their own farms was $408 for the year studied, and $870 for the tenants. These figures are obtained by deducting 5 per cent of the capital investment from the net income. As the tenant has a smaller capital investment this labor income is proportionately larger.

Strangely enough the farmers making the lowest labor incomes are on the farms, but they fail through inefficient management. Poor crops, low prices for products sold, poor stock, failure to work and unused capital are given as the main causes contributing to their failure. The income of the farmer who owns his farm is in direct proportion to his capital and the size of his farm. Men owning small farms often materially increase their incomes by renting additional land. The tenant's income is in direct proportion to the risk he assumes. On the cash rent basis his income is greater in a good year and less in a poor year than when he rents on the share basis. Approximately one-third of the total expense is for labor, and for this reason the "family size" farm is the most desirable; that is, one which provides just a fair amount of work for the farmer and his family, and permits the best use of men, horses and machinery.

Of the "crop farm" where 50 per cent or over of the total farm receipts are derived from the sale of grain, and the live-stock farm where the farmer feeds most of his crops, the latter proved a much better investment, though the fact that they were usually larger than the "crop farm" contributed something to this result. But the average labor income of the farmer who owned his own farm was but $28 per farm, whereas the average live-stock farmer under similar conditions had a labor income of $750.

UNIVERSITY CHURCH TO BE ESTABLISHED

Interdenominational Church With Half Million in Dollar Endowment Planned for Madison.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 25.—An interdenominational church at the University of Wisconsin, to involve a half million dollars in its foundation and endowment, is being planned by leading Protestant denominations now maintaining university pastorates. A large part of the fund will take the form of an endowment and adherents of the several denominations in this and other states will be asked to help raise it. To discuss this plan, a committee of the Baptist National Board will meet here this week with the state committees of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches, the local committee of the Methodists, and the Y. M. C. A. of the university. The Lutherans will probably co-operate to some extent also.

The auditorium of the proposed church will be the largest in Madison and the pipe organ and chorus choir will be the largest in the state, according to plans.

Experience has proved that students generally refuse to go down town to church, and the University Pastors' Alliance has determined that if possible the churches must go to the students. The plan contemplates that students will retain their membership in churches of the city, attending them in the morning, but that afternoon and evening services shall be in the union church at the campus entrance. With a university enrollment nearing 10,000 the necessities of the situation are held to demand a solution on this order. Two denominations—the Methodist and Lutheran—are now preparing to build their own churches. This movement and join in the interdenominational union if this is determined upon at once. The university pastors and many of their denominational churches here are strongly in favor of the plan.

A school of religion in affiliation with the university is another possibility. It has the endorsement of the university, and an assurance has been given by President Van Hise and the regents, it is reported, that if the state will equip it and designate its curriculum, it will have their approval.

BADING AND SEIDEL NAMED IN MILWAUKEE

DAVID S. ROSE RUNS BAD THIRD IN FIERCE PRIMARY ELECTION CONTEST.

SOCIALISTS SHOW GAIN

Split in Nonpartisan Forces Gives Seidel's Adherents Their Opportunity—Bading Confident.

Milwaukee, March 25.—Seidel and Bading were nominated for mayor yesterday, according to the count of first choice votes, in the first nonpartisan primary ever held in Milwaukee.

The vote:

Emil Seidel 21,054
Gerhard A. Bading 20,022
David S. Rose 17,511
Theodore J. Bading 1,285

Louis M. Kotowski and Carl P. Dietz were nominated for city controller, and Daniel W. Hoan and W. M. Timmerman were nominated for city treasurer. C. B. Whitman and J. P. Clancy being the only candidates for the office.

Socialists Have Ticket.

The one certain result as regards the remainder of the ticket is that the Socialists have nominated a full ticket. The vote for alderman-at-large was greatly complicated by the exceeding number of candidates, and at 2 o'clock there were no figures obtainable as to what candidates had been nominated for aldermen, either at large or from the wards.

Seidel carried the south side, with Bading second, though Rose crowded the mayor and running first in the Eighth and running a close second in the Seventeenth ward, which Seidel carried.

Seidel carried the Sixth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirtieth, Thirtieth and twenty-fourth wards. Bading carried the Second, Third, Thirteenth, Sixteenth and Nineteenth wards.

Rose carried the First (his home and also the home of David Bading) the Fourth, and the Eighth wards.

Otjen Loses Ward.

Otjen did not carry a single ward, losing even his own, the Seventeenth, to Seidel and running in fifth ward behind every other candidate. He carried one precinct in the Seventeenth, and received a large vote in one precinct of the Fifth.

The surprise to many was the amazing strength shown by the Socialists. Another surprise was the weakness of Theodore Otjen. Up to a late hour the Rose headquarters remained hopeful. The Bading headquarters were in doubt, but as the last returns came in it had evident that Rose did not gather sufficient strength on the south side to offset the heavy vote for Bading throughout the remainder of the city. Rose had counted on carrying the Polish wards by large majorities, and in some of them he did receive a large vote, particularly the Eighth (which he carried), the Twelfth, Fourteenth and Seventeenth.

Rose is Silent.

Rose, while practically admitting defeat early this morning, would not make an official statement to that effect. He dismissed reporters, saying that he had not even until after he had held a conference with the ward leaders.

The Socialists were cock over the results and said that they would now turn the city over to the Socialists with greater vigor than they had shown in the primary, and predicted that they would win the election.

Bading is Confident.

Mayor Bading is confident invited to join him in the fight, and assured them that he would do all in his power to convince the people of Milwaukee that their interest lay in his confidence in him and all his supporters were equally so.

FIRE PROPERTY AND ATTEMPT TO MURDER

Green Bay Man Victim of Unknown Enemies Suffers Many Losses.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Green Bay, March 25.—Not satisfied with destroying the property at West Holland, Wis., in Brown county, enemies of Eugene Maluev made what appears to have been an attempt on his life and that of his wife and friend last night.

The house occupied by Maluev was fired by unknown parties, and the owner and his wife and Hugh Finnegan, who was visiting them, barely escaped.

A short time ago a new cheese factory which Mr. Maluev started to build was dynamited and partially wrecked. Mr. Maluev was employed for a number of years as a cheesemaker for the Red Clover Co-operative Dairy Company, and not long ago quit that employ to erect a factory of his own. In February the dairy company instituted replevin action to recover goods in which they claim Mr. Maluev has in his possession.

MAKE PROTEST AGAINST SOLDIERS TORTURING THE RUSSIAN EXILES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

St. Petersburg, March 25.—The recent sufferings of the political exiles at Nyrm has been made the subject of a formal protest to the Minister of the Interior by the labor group in the Duma. A letter demanding conditions there says the exiles are in danger of starvation, their appeals to the governor for relief remaining unheeded.

Among the complaints, the committee of police is charged with having dispersed a group of exiles who were boarding together, declaring that such a gathering constituted an unlawful assembly. An exile named M. S. Solovoy was recently incarcerated in a "punishment cell" for a week, to "teach with her child, for the offense of teaching the little one to read."

STRIKERS AT DEPEW REMAIN QUIET TODAY

Town is Under Military Law, With Streets Patrolled All Night by Squads of Militia.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

De Pew, N. Y., March 25.—With the entire town under martial law quiet prevailed today among the strikers of the Gould Coupler Works. The strikers were ordered to remain all night by squads of militia. The day shift of workmen was accompanied from Buffalo to the plant by a battalion of guardsmen.

Just about daybreak today four shots were fired from a distance through the Erie railroad gate of the coupler plant. This point was guarded by special deputies, but no one was injured and the shots were not returned.

SENATOR CRAWFORD LOSES PRIMARY FIGHT IN IOWA

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Sioux City, Iowa, March 25.—A Huron, South Dakota dispatch to the Journal says: "Senator C. E. Crawford concedes the nomination of Congressman Charles H. Burke, his opponent for senator, by two thousand votes. The result was a candidate on the republican majority and Burke the minority."

CUSTOMS OFFICIALS HAGGLE OVER RED TAPE; TOWN BURNS

Brussels, March 25.—The Belgian customs officers "on the French frontier have been warned to use more common sense and less red tape in the future. The result was the result of a fire in the village of Los Ballons. Fearing that the whole place would be swept, the mayor telephoned an urgent appeal for assistance to the fire department of the town of Wattrelos, just across the border. The Frenchmen responded promptly with their motor engine, but on reaching the frontier they were stopped by a customs officer. In vain they protested, the engine going to fire, but after consulting with his colleagues, the officer flatly refused permission to them to cross with his colleagues, the officer flatly provided with the required "motor tourists" license.

While they were arguing, the fire, which was only one hundred yards from the frontier was spreading, but finally the officers compromised by allowing them to string a line of hose across the border, the engine working on French soil. After an hour's hard work they extinguished the flames, received the thanks of the mayor and returned to France.

BLOODHOUNDS FAIL ON TRAIL OF MURDERERS OF BANK PRESIDENT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Superior, Neb., March 25.—Bloodhounds put on the trail of the men who last night shot and wounded Capt. C. E. Adams, president of the failed First National bank here, did not uncover any new clues which would lead to the assassin's identity. The shooting followed the receiving of several anonymous letters.

The Easier Way Is The Co-Operative Way

There is no royal road to business success—but some ways are easier than others.

Co-operative advertising between merchants and manufacturers in the newspapers that directly reach the buying is the modern "Easier Way."

When the manufacturer of a nationally distributed article puts his plea for business in the newspapers, he is making customers for your store as well as for himself, Mr. Dealer.

The more business he can send to the store the better off he is.

Conversely every time the merchant customer pleasantly shows the advertised article, and explains its merit, he is helping the manufacturer as well as himself.

It's a fair game of push and pull.

When manufacturer and merchant work together through the columns of the local newspapers they are moving to success along the "Easier Way."

If any manufacturer or dealer interested in co-operative advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York, it will be glad to answer questions.

COMPENSATION IS DENIED TO A SUPERIOR YOUTH

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 25.—Because he was under eighteen years of age, Elmer Nordness of Superior was denied compensation from the Northwestern Fuel company for injuries, in a decision of the industrial commission. A new law states that a person under eighteen cannot work around mines or railroads. Nordness was a car sealer, seventeen and one-half years old.

The Mullen Lumber company of Mellen must pay John Erickson a woodsman $1,277.64 as the balance of compensation determined upon before for injuries resulting in permanent disability to the extent of 50 per cent of his normal ability to work.

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY OF DISASTROUS OHIO FLOODS BY PUBLIC MASS MEETING

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Dayton, Ohio, March 25.—Exactly one year ago today mountainous torrents ripped open the banks of the Ohio cities and villages, left death and irreparable damage in their path. Eighty-one lives were snuffed out by the disastrous floods of a year ago, and today the anniversary was appropriately observed here and elsewhere by mass meetings and public balls and by special services in many churches. President Wilson had been urged to speak here today but press of important business of state kept him from attending.

ORDERED TO PAY $58,100 ALIMONY

Charles H. Foster, president of the Cadillac Automobile Company of Illinois, has been ordered to pay alimony of $58,100 to his wife, who secured a divorce last week. A fee of $5,000 in addition was awarded the complainant's attorney. The troubles of the Fosters culminated a short time ago, when Mr. Foster came home late at night and, when his wife became inquisitive and got out of bed while he was telephoning from an adjoining room, he hurled a beer bottle at her head. Foster is a prominent yachtsman. A few years ago he had his salary.

EMPEROR PUTS FOOT DOWN ON CROWN PRINCE'S TRIP TO AFRICA THIS SPRING

Berlin, March 25.—The trip to Africa which the crown prince had proposed this year, has been definitely abandoned, it was understood that the reason for this step is the emperor's objection to the crown prince interrupting his work on the general of the army by such a long absence. Another reason put forward in some quarters is that the imperial parliament would refuse an appropriation to cover the expense of such a trip.

ALLEN WEST WRITES ON CORN GROWTH

GIVES CONSTITUENT OF GOOD EAR OF CORN IN DESCRIPTION.

TWO CORN PURPOSES

Director Report Gives Vivid Idea on Phases of Work.—Keep Eyes Open for Good Books.

By Allen B. West.

Meeting a farmer the other day on the train I endeavored to obtain some information at first hand. I said to him: "You have raised tobacco?" "Yes," was his ready response. "How much does a crop of tobacco cost per acre?" "Well, that depends upon the kind of tobacco. Some grades of tobacco cost more and some less."

"About what does it average?" "I couldn't tell that off hand; varies so much, you know."

"What is a crop of tobacco worth per acre?"

"Well, that varies too, you know, with the kind and quality of tobacco. Sometimes one gets more, and sometimes less. I couldn't give any figures per acre, but I tell you what I'd like to see in this country. I would like to have a good corn contest. That's what you ought to have. I'd give twenty-five dollars toward it. Mind, I say, a good corn contest. We had a contest once and I had some fine Murdock corn in it, but they had some of those university fellows down to judge on it, and they didn't know anything about corn. I should want it understood there were to be no university fellows for judges. Their knowledge is all book knowledge. They can't judge corn."

As our conversation was interrupted here, I didn't learn by what standards my farmer friend would have corn judged, and I have been wondering about it ever since.

An examination of the corn exhibit at the Mid-Winter Fair held in Janesville last week showed a difference between the corn exhibited by the farmers (not in the professional class) and the corn exhibited by the boys, with the difference, according to university standards, in favor of the boy's exhibit.

Now let us see what should constitute a good ear of corn?

Corn is grown for two purposes—for feed and for seed.

For both of these purposes the corn should be well matured.

Corn that is not well matured will not make good seed.

Corn that is not well matured is not so valuable for feed and has not so high a market value.

It will not keep so well as matured corn.

The ears that contain the most corn are the best ears for although the cob possesses some value as for feed, the cob is not raised for the cob, but for the grain.

Such ears will be cylindrical in shape and the cob will be of medium size with butts and tips well filled. The kernels will be long and close together in the rows, and the rows also together and straight.

That such ears will produce the most grain may be easily tested by any one who will take the trouble to shell such ears and others of different description and measure the corn. Another test for corn for seed should be its vitality or its power to grow. This is to be determined by examination of the "cobs" of the grain. If black it will not grow. If large and of good color it is an indication of vitality.

The statement made by our farmer friend that the knowledge of the university professor is "book knowledge" and hence impractical for the farmer, is one that it is well to investigate, since the attitude of many farmers toward the university is one of belief that this great institution is of no direct benefit to them but is on the contrary a burden on account of the enormous taxes required for its support.

In 1887 there was passed by the federal congress what has since been known as the Hatch Act, having been introduced by Representative Hatch of Missouri, which founded the system of agricultural experiment stations, appropriating to this purpose $15,000 annually for this purpose, which was set forth in the act as "the acquiring and diffusing among the people of the United States the use of practical information on subjects connected with agriculture, and to promote scientific investigation and experiment respecting the principles and application of agricultural science." In 1906 Hon. H. C. Adams of Wisconsin introduced a supplementary act known as the Adams Act adding another $15,000 to that already appropriated so that now each state receives $30,000 from the United States treasury for this work.

This appropriation from the United States is supplemented by appropriation from the state, which has been generous so that the staff of the station now numbers about eighty men, who are giving their time to this work, which by no means that of the study of books, but to actual raising of crops, the breeding of animals, the maintenance of a dairy, the management of poultry, the raising of swine, etc. In short not only are all farm operations carried on on the experimental farm, but many other things relating to farm interests are tried out here.

The College of Agriculture of our state university, of which the experiment station is a branch, has two farms, one of 300 acres and another of 290 acres. The latter farm is devoted especially to experiments with farm crops, fertilizers, tillage, drainage, etc. These farms are equipped with practical farm buildings and stocked with horses, cattle, sheep and swine, representing the leading breeds, also several hundred fowls.

Realizing that it is impossible to try out experiments for the entire state on one section of land, branch experimental stations have been established in other portions of the state to solve the problems peculiar to the localities in which they are situated. There are three of these, one at Spooner, Washburn county, on the sandy, Jack pine soils; one at Ashland Junction, Bayfield county, on superior red clay, and one at Marshfield, in Wood county, where the soil is known as the Colby silt loam.

More than forty different lines of work conducted by the experiment stations are reported in the last bulletin issued in January, 1913, and giving an account of the work for the years 1911 and 1912.

These experiments cover a great range of subjects, a number of them dealing with various plant diseases and insect pests, others with different phases of dairying, from the cost of producing butter fat to the marketing of Wisconsin cheese.

Glancing through the report of the director one is interested at once by the illustrations which portray different phases of the work.

Figure 1 shows two piles of peas in the pod, the first pile being twice as large as the second, shows that the destructive disease known as "blight," which in 1910 was so destructive as to put twelve companies canning peas out of business, can be prevented by the use of Bordeaux Mixture. The plants growing the first pile had been treated, those producing the smaller pile had not been.

Figure 2 shows two cabbage fields, one with a few scattering plants, the other with the vigorous plants covering the ground, the first being the result of "resistant" seed, carefully selected from plants that had resisted certain fungus diseases to which this plant is subject.

Figure 3 shows the picture of two tobacco seed beds, the one with large, vigorous plants more than twice the size of the second, this showing the beneficial effects of steam sterilization of the soil.

Figure 4 shows two bunches of barley, each containing 100 plants, the one with well developed, vigorous heads, the other affected with "leaf stripe," showing no heads. Experiments have shown that the formalin treatment of seed as practiced for oat smut and the covered smut of barley is effective in controlling this disease.

Figures 7 and 8 show the hemp which furnished a yield valued at $118 per acre on the state's prison farm at Waupun, kills out Canada thistles and quack grass.

Figure 10 shows in a graphic way the effect of iron and rock acid phosphate on oats and rape, showing the opposite effect on the two plants.

Figures 14 and 15 are of special interest to the dairyman and breeder. One shows the calf of a cow fed on corn and the other a calf born; the other a vigorous calf of a cow fed corn, stover and wheat grain.

Figure 16 shows the relation of cost of feed to net returns from the milk and pork crops in a corn crop, petition test covering two years. The best corn consumed about two and three-fourths times as much feed as the poorest corn, but her actual net return was eight times as great.

One interesting picture shows the exhibit of the world's champion barley, which are the Wisconsin barleys that have for three successive years won the highest awards in open-to-the-public contests.

Figure 23 shows two piles of alfalfa, the one raised on inoculated soil, the other half as large on un inoculated soil.

These pictures are none of them facts of the imagination, but reproductions of actual photographs representing actual work done within the time covered by the report, the years 1911 and 1912.

The experimental work covered by the past twenty-five years has proved of inestimable value to the farmers of the state. It would hardly be overestimating the case to say that the state has paid for the expenses of the experiment station, the work with pedigreed grain and the prevention of the oat smut has saved millions of dollars for the farmers of the state.

There are many ways of learning facts that are helpful in one's business. Study, reading, observation, experience all have their place, in farming as in other lines of work. There is a familiar saying that "the school of experience is a dear one, but school will learn in no other."

Wisconsin farmers, as individuals, cannot afford to learn in that school. It would in some cases take years for individual farmers to gain from experience the knowledge he may read in fifteen minutes from publications of the experiment station, where the problems have been worked out for him by men who are making it their business to solve certain problems. These men are better equipped by education and training, to solve these problems than are the farmers who must give their time and thought as well as their physical energy to a great variety of tasks.

With land at from one to two hundred dollars an acre, as in Rock county, with help scarce and farm equipment costly, farmers cannot afford to do much experimenting. Neither can they afford to farm in the old fashioned way of a generation past, the way their fathers did.

Agricultural science is progressive and a farmer must be something of a student and not a dead end. The future if he is going to make farming pay, and most farmers are in the business for that purpose.

In these days when there is such an abundance of farm literature based on experimental knowledge, it is a splendid idea that only he who has been brought up on a farm can be a successful farmer.

More and more are professional and business men going into farming and making it pay. This is possible because of the work of the experimental stations and the literature that is distributed by them.

The following are bulletins issued by the University Experiment Station reported in the Bulletin 228 that are of interest to Rock county farmers:

215. Poultry House Construction.
216. Practical Lessons from the Management of the University Dairy Herd.

220. Better Cream Through Grading.
221. Getting the Most Profit from Farm Manure.

SELECT EXTEMPORE SPEAKERS TO MEET IN ANNUAL EVENT

Victor Hemming, Edward P. Atwood, Manilla Powers and John Ferguson Will Compete for Medal.

The inter-class contest for extempore speaking was held yesterday afternoon in the assembly room of the high school for the purpose of selecting the best four speakers to be represented in the Recorder medal contest, which was won by Victor Hemming last spring.

Out of twelve speakers, who had been chosen in the class contests last week, to give addresses yesterday, but one failed to appear. Out of the eleven who spoke, Victor Hemming, Edward P. Atwood, John Ferguson and Manilla Powers were judged as the most brilliant ones. These four will compete in the annual spring oratorical and declamatory contest, which comes in April.

Miss Powers took for her topic yesterday, "The Mexican Situation for the Past Year." She displayed unusual talent and bids fair toward pushing her competitors in the race.

Edward P. Atwood won a place on the subject, "Nation's Undeveloped Resources." His deliberation of the question was the feature of his talk.

John Ferguson gave a splendid account of "Municipal Government," showing how it should be run, and how it is run. He presented some good, hard facts in his talk.

Victor Hemming had just such a talk, which won him honors last year. In last spring's contest, he selected the "Recall" subject, and his talk proved sensational. Yesterday he discussed the much-talked-about "Commitment Law" and received a hearty applause when he closed his address.

The coming contest will be run the same as last year. Topics will be handed out perhaps ten to fifteen minutes before the speakers talk, and up to that time the contestants will not know what their subject is going to be.

The other contestants who lost out yesterday, and the subjects which they talked on, are as follows: "Life at West Point," Leland Hyzer; "Cool Gorges and World Sanitation," Sherwood Sheldon; "Child Labor," Vera Hough; "Good Roads," Harvey Fisher; "A Day at West Point," Bessie Buell; "The Great Oil Man From Texas," Ruth Soultman; "Neutrality of the Panama Canal," Floyd Roberts.

The judges for the contest, selected by Prof. Buell were Prof. T. J. Lowth of the Rock County Training school; Miss Gertrude Cobb, of the public library, and Miss McGregor of the Blind Institute.

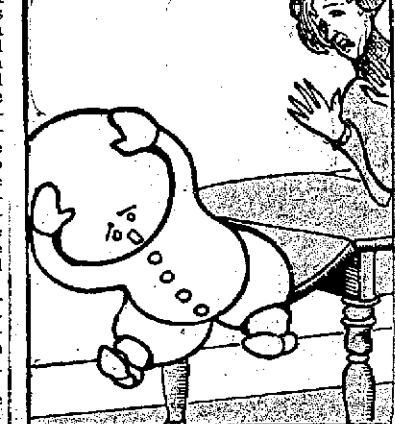

Almost.

"The man who sings is never wholly bad," says one of the philosophers. We might almost say the same thing of the girl who is taking vocal lessons.

Paraguay's "Railway Beetle." In Paraguay there is found a "railway beetle," a kind of glowworm, which emits a strong red light from head to tail, but also a green light along each side of its body.

CHAMPIONS LEFT AT NOON FOR APPLETON

HOPES ARE THAT INVASION OF NORTHERN TERRITORY MAY PROVE SUCCESSFUL.

SEND-OFF IS SPIRITED

Team Promise to Bring Home Second Successive Sheepskin as Train Departs From Station.

Before a crowd of enthusiastic supporters, comprising high school students, business men and others, numbering perhaps a thousand people, the Janesville high school basketball champions, accompanied by Coach Curtis, departed at 12:45 this afternoon for Appleton, where they engage in the tenth annual state high school basketball tournament, beginning tomorrow afternoon.

The members of the team all firmly resolved upon leaving the station that no sheepskin would or could possibly slip by them, at this critical moment, and they feel confident of winning the second state title in as many years. Cumberland high school five will be Janesville's first opponents in the opening contest of the tournament Thursday afternoon. The game is scheduled to begin promptly at three o'clock, and should be over in an hour, to make way for the Fond du Lac-Menomonee contest.

Before hopping on the train this noon, every player was asked to make a short speech, and they were given a ride on the shoulders of classmates. The car was decorated up as in past years by girls of the school, and a spirited send-off administered. The team were scheduled to arrive in Appleton about seven o'clock tonight where they will be taken to the Sherman Hotel. A good rest will be given the men up to Thursday morning, when about ten o'clock basketball and signal practice will be indulged in at the armory gymnasium, preliminary to the Cumberland game at three o'clock. The scores will be received at the Gazette as soon as the games are over, and posted on the bulletin board.

FAST MEN MATCHED FOR PRELIMINARIES

Bouts Before Championship Tilt Promise to Result in Fast Matches— Local Boxer Matched.

Aside from the class of the championship mill between Walter Baumgartner of Milwaukee and Spike Kelly of Superior and Chicago, the preliminaries that have been scheduled for the boxing exhibition on April first are of unusual interest to boxing fans of southern Wisconsin.

The directors aimed to match Batling Cox of Janesville with Young Scotty of Milwaukee, but wrangling over terms which Cox placed at a higher figure than at previous Beloit or Janesville matches he had boxed for and the bout fell through. Beloit fans are interested in the match between Red Oliver and Hal Clark of Milwaukee at 135 pounds, for eight rounds. Oliver in his last match in southern Wisconsin won a newspaper decision over Shrank, a fast losing first part of their match by being put to the canvas in the first round, by aggressive mixing in the last sessions. Hal Clark licked Shrank also and the two appear to be evenly matched.

Oliver has been boxing in southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois for some time, and the majority of the Janesville fans have seen him in action and when the referee gives the word expect to see both a fast and hard battle between the two as Hal Clark is considered some "wildcat" by the Cream City fans.

The eight round dispute between Iva Lanning of Salt Lake City, who has been attracted to Milwaukee and has started on a campaign to show the state boxers that Utah glove men knew the rudiments of the game and have the winning tricks under their sleeves. George Temple is a brother of Ray Temple, at one time a nationally famed boxer, and his younger brother is putting across some great victories around the state. These two welterweights will mix for eight rounds, weighing in at three o'clock in the afternoon at 142 pounds.

The match between Bobby Ward of Beloit and Young Nickols of Janesville promises to attract a bunch of local interest between followers of the squared circle of the two cities. Ward is a great favorite with the Beloit fans and although he received a bad lacing from Young Scotty, last month, is a clever man but has a whole dictionary to learn about the game. The calibre of Young Nickols is unknown to the local fans as this will be his first appearance in the ring, but reports have it that he has been following boxing for two years and is a clever man. Judging from his past performances it looks as if Ward has not got wallop enough to floor him for the count.

The directors are uncertain who they will hire to be the third man in the ring to referee the entire card, and efforts are being made to hire Stout, who officiated at the championship melee between Wolgast and Ritchie.

WAUSAU IS GIVEN CHANCE FOR TITLE

Eleventh Hour Change Forces Racine to Meet Northerners at Four O'clock This Afternoon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Appleton, Wis., March 25.—An eleventh hour change in the plans of the conduct of the annual interscholastic tournament under the auspices of Lawrence College, announced last night, may make a change in the personnel of the teams finally battling for the state championship during the three days regularly scheduled for those games. Instead of the first tournament game being played tomorrow afternoon, Racine and Wausau high school teams will play this afternoon at 4 o'clock to determine which of the two teams will be entered in the regular tournament, opening Thursday afternoon.

Racine have willingly agreed to such a contest. The tournament will not be affected in the least possible way. If Wausau wins, then Wausau will play Oshkosh Thursday night, instead of Racine, as the schedule called for. The winner of today's game will play one more game than any other team in the meet. In the last analysis there will only be eight teams in the turnery, the game today serving as an elimination contest, since Racine is so weak.

How to Clean a Violin Bow.

If your bow is at all greasy, it may be cleaned with soap and hot water, and will then take the rosin once more. But the hairs may be worn smooth by usage, and in that case the only remedy is to have the bow repaired. If used constantly, the hairs wear out in about six months or less.

Followed the Colors.

"And I suppose, like a brave soldier, you followed your colors." "Yes; whenever there was a battle, I noticed that the colors were flying, so I fled, too."

Sport Snap Shots

A Gotham baseball scribe has utterly outraged his fellow workers by having the temerity to pick the winner of the Fed pennant. Of course all the sport writers in the country—ah, those visionary prophets—have been picking the title winners in the American and National leagues. But it remained for this startlingly original sucker in our largest city to try and announce from the dope just what team will land at the top of the Federal league heap. It will not surprise many to learn a little later that the rascal has been kicked out of the profession. Well, anyway, he says that the Feds will end the season lined up in this fashion: Baltimore, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Buffalo, Chicago, Brooklyn and Kansas City. If you are sufficiently interested to want to know the gent's dope on this please write, inclosing a stamped envelope. We haven't the nerve to put the stuff in print.

No one can say it of the Britons that they're not highly discerning. They wished up to our national division in short order. Here are some of the fine points of the game as pointed out in London. Batters: Beatingly dashing of them—wot! Listen: Baseball is just rounders, played hard. He hit a catch to second base. The fielding altogether collared the batting. Each side played twenty-seven mortal innings, all more or less the same. We who had awaited the exhibition with a keen desire to understand and admire were a little dashed at its transparency. . . . is rounders. Some of the finer points of the game are discernible to all who know their cricket. Even rounders on the village green would have had a greater element of excitement. The batter places the ball, but does not always hit it. The pitcher throws the ball and a snap of the wrist gives it "devil." Their faces are curiously alike—big and square. The pitcher does not toss the ball; he throws it hard; part of his game being to pretend he isn't going to. His club . . . rather like a thin Indian club. A cricketer would find it hard to hit a ball. The fan is the clown of the game. It failed, in the slang of its country, to "make good."

This magazine game. . . . The word "rounders" annoyed the Americans, but there is no essential difference. Freddie Welsh gets a nice fragrant gardenia from us as the most capable of all press agents. No sooner had he licked Joe Rivers in his recent bout than he rushed away to a telegraph office and sent a message to his sovereign, King George, telling him all about it. It appears that the king takes quite an interest in such things over there and so Welsh made speed to put him hep. And George sends back a wire of congratulation. Whereupon Freddie Welsh's chest expansion went above normal.

The barometric depression that was in the Rocky mountain region yesterday has advanced to Lake Superior, and increased in intensity. It has been attended by rain and snow throughout the interior of the country from the Appalachians to the Rockies. The heaviest precipitation was in eastern North Dakota where from 7 to 9 inches of snow fell. The temperature has risen throughout the Mississippi and Ohio valleys on account of the southerly winds in front of this disturbance. It is very cold in western Canada, where temperatures of zero to six below prevail. Another barometric depression is forming in the Rocky mountain region.

WEATHER FORECAST.

In this vicinity the weather will probably be fair and colder tonight and Thursday. The wind will continue high to day, but diminish tonight and Thursday.

THE ULSTER SITUATION.

The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin explains the present Ulster situation as follows:

"For months past no pains have been spared to create the impression that Ulster was in a tinder-like condition, ready to burst into flame at a breath. Every newspaper office in the world is supplied with photographs or plates showing the Ulster invincibles, with their cartridge belts on and their guns aimed at nothing in particular ready to fire at a volley that would be heard around the world. From what appeared in the cable news of last Saturday nervous people feared that Sunday might not pass without the opening of civil war in the United Kingdom. Sunday has slipped away and the best part of Monday has followed it, while the color of Ulster on the map of Europe remains unchanged. Indeed, the situation in Ulster is distinctly less alarming than it was at the close of last week.

"What could Ulster hope to gain by fighting? How much she would be sure to lose! The people of Ulster are noted for shrewd practicality in many things. If, as today's reports indicate, they have not flung themselves against the might of England's throne, the world will conclude that they are not crazy, and that the war talk is sane. It seems on the surface, having for its purpose the bloodshed, but the forcing of further and further concessions from the Liberal government, and perhaps of influencing King George himself to intervene. When the last possibility of squeezing concessions disappears, the war talk is due to subside.

"The resignations of regimental officers stationed in Ulster cast a spectacular sidelight on the situation, and apparently were made to seem more influential and important than was warranted by the facts. The resignations were said to have greatly worried the King. The story is that General Sir Arthur Paget, commanding the troops in Ireland, said he was in receipt of an express order and request from the King to ask all officers to go as ordered; to tell them they might never be called upon to fight, while if they refused to go there might be a mutiny in the army—which would mean a revolution in England, and in six months there would be no King and no army. Another account is that General Paget gave assurance the movement of troops and military stores to Ulster was intended merely for the protection of government property, not to make war on the Ulstermen. Rumors that there would be resignations from the navy have been started, but so far not verified.

"On the whole, however, the general situation today seems easier, and the very fact of time passing without disorder gives an opportunity for reflection which tends to promote prudence."

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

By the nomination of J. T. Hooper as a candidate for school commissioner at large, by the writing in of his name on the ballot, Tuesday, by over two hundred voters, Janesville has a rare opportunity of electing a man as member of the school board, who ranks as one of the most successful educators of the state. For many years Mr. Hooper was superintendent of schools at Ashland, in which city his work is still spoken of, and he left, as a lasting monument, one of the best equipped high schools in the state. The fact that he was not known until Monday that Mr. Hooper would be connected with the office and that to secure his nomination it was necessary to have his name written on the ballot and that he secured the endorsement of some two hundred voters in this way, shows that much appreciated the opportunity of securing his services, if possible, for this important office, which means considerable work and no remuneration. For the past two years Mr. Hooper has had charge of the Wisconsin State School for the Blind, and his work there has been most successful. He is interested in educational matters and in Janesville schools, owing to the fact that he has children who are pupils in these schools. He has a state-wide reputation on school matters and his judgments are sought by educators in many parts of the country, who know and appreciate his worth. A graduate of the state university, he took an active part in athletics in his undergraduate days, acting as manager of one of the most famous of the university baseball teams, when baseball was in its heyday as a college sport. He is in hearty accord with civic movements and a man who would be invaluable to the city in the position that his friends have nominated him for should he be elected. It is a rare opportunity for the voters such a man and one not to be overlooked.

DECISION OF VOTERS.

By their ballots on Tuesday, the voters of Janesville selected Chancy Millmore and Peter J. Goodman, as their choice for the two candidates to be voted on April 7th for commissioner. With a field of five candidates the endorsement of Mr. Millmore's candidacy, by some one hundred and fifty odd votes, over his nearest competitor, Mr. Goodman, must be most gratifying to that gentleman and his friends. The fact that Millmore lead the whole field is also an endorsement of the present commission and their actions and can not but be taken as such. For the past two years Mr. Millmore has held the office of commissioner, having charge of the streets, and it would appear that under existing conditions he should be re-elected to fill out a full term of six years at the April election. His two years' experience have made him valuable as a public servant and it would be unfortunate to have him replaced at this time by another commissioner who would have to adjust himself to the existing conditions. It is to be hoped that the majority of the voters will likewise and cast their ballot for him on April 7th at the regular election.

WOMEN ACTIVE.

The registry of over a hundred women at the Tuesday primaries shows that the women of the city are taking an active interest in civic matters that should be encouraged. True, they can only vote on the question of school matters, but their judgment in these matters is most excellent as they come in closer touch with school affairs than does the average husband and father and the movement should be encouraged. The fact that one lady asked if she was in the right place where the "preliminaries" were held, shows that perhaps their interest is not without reason.

On the Spur of the Moment

Grandpa. There's no one in this whole world who knows as much as grandpa does. I sometimes think that he must be the wisest man that ever was. He can predict the weather better than the regular weather man. He doesn't always guess it right, but then, no other fellow can.

He always tells us far ahead, how all elections will come out. He's seen so many hot campaigns, he never has the slightest doubt. Of course, he often makes mistakes. But there are very few who can, that is so far as I can learn.

He's got a safe, sure remedy for every ill that man can find. There's no disease that he can't cure, or none that I can call to mind. Of course, sometimes they don't get well, but that is just part of a lot of doctors that I know in this town must admit the same.

His knowledge is as free as air. He always peddles out advice. Without the form of being asked. His wisdom is beyond all price. Some fellows who have followed it have made their fortunes. Some have not.

For grandpa's human like the rest, although he's liked an awful lot. Two Poker Hands. One of the passengers in the smoker of a sleeping car out of Chicago related with much gusto an encounter which he recently had with a desperate western man, the weapons being cards. The game was poker, the special occasion was a big jack pot, and the figures in profane history, and the two principals were armed with straight flushes. "It was a $1 limit game," remarked the young man, "and we bet $1 times and then I called him. He had a sequence flush—queen high, and I had one king high. You should have heard him swear."

An old man listening with great attention to the story and at its conclusion he exclaimed, with much candid astonishment: "You call him!"

The young man blushed and acknowledged his guilt. "Well, well," said the old man shaking his head, "these times is suitably what they used to be. You see, I cum from Tennessee, and we ain't up to this way or doin' things. Why, I'm playin' a hand wit' that wuz dealt to me pap in 1857. Him an ole Judge Dubbin' of Murfreesboro, they set into a game one night in September of 1857, an' they bet an' bet an' bet, an' they run out of cash bet bet mules, an' then horses, an' then niggers, an' at last they took to bettin' acres of lan', and then they run out everything, an' then was asped that the lan's should be put in sealed envelopes, an' marked an' kept in the vault of the bank till both of 'em got more stuff. Well, it went on that way off an' on till the war cum, and the ole judge died an' his pap was killed at Seven Pines an' then young Jim Dubbin' he tuk his ole man's place and I tuk das'. Well gentlemen we've just bettin' vit whenever we git the cash, an' there ain't no signs of quitin', but I wud timsingly like to see them han's of nays an' ole Judge Dubbin's afore I die."

Bromides. "I want you to go out to lunch with me some noon. Don't forget. I just love cold weather. It makes me feel so ambitious." "Just as soon as we get settled in our cottage we are going to have you down for a week-end." "This car isn't running the way it ought to. You ought to see it when it is right." "Dainty refreshments were served." "He left a large circle of relatives and friends."

According to Uncle Abner. This is certainly an ungrateful world. As soon as a fellow dies, the relatives all rush to the newspaper and put in a card of thanks. There are only two kinds of winners in this world that are hard to understand—the married ones and the single ones. SOUTHERN POINTS OF INTEREST DESCRIBED BY LOCAL YOUNG MAN Conditions Along Texas Border Pictured and Southern Cities Spoken of.

During these stirring times along our southern border, it is interesting to have reports of conditions there. It is doubly interesting when the reports come directly from local individuals who have visited there. F. L. Davis, who has just returned from a trip through southern Texas gives a graphic presentation of affairs in that part of the country. "For weeks before I left here, I had been receiving orders not to sell through transportation into Mexico. Until the time that the trouble gray serious along the northern Pacific had been operating through trains from Chicago and St. Louis to Mexico City. Then as the Mexicans began to use violence, tearing up tracks and burning stations, it was considered no longer safe for trains to be run across the border from the United States. At the present time, six and a half miles from the border, Texas, which is one of the gateways to Mexico. While I was in San Antonio I was surprised at the great number of colored people and Mexicans. Upon inquiry I was informed that these two races comprised about two-thirds of the population of the total of about 100,000. There are 32,000 Mexicans in this city who have fled from their native country to secure protection from the United States and to get out of military service. Both the rich and the poor have come over and are living in hovels. I was told that as many as sixteen persons had been provided in a single room, and even under those conditions they are provided for in better shape than they were in their own country, and far better than they would be if they were there at the present time. The people of Texas are becoming disgusted with the situation, as they have no use for the Mexicans who run away from their own country, and occasionally the rebels come across the border on raids, and make their way away before the Texas have a chance to catch them and punish them for their work. During the past few weeks Americans are being advised to stay on this side of the border, and there are not many who have done so. There are many tourists visited not long ago. In Galveston the soldiers were camped in their permanent quarters while I was there, and many more were coming in during the week. The realistic war preparations are really being made for quick action should necessity demand violent measures. There are five thousand soldiers in the tents at Galveston and eight thousand at Texas City, six miles along the Gulf from Galveston. Here all the conveniences imaginable are enjoyed by the soldiers. They have electric lights in their tents, and running water within easy reach of all the officers. They live in elegant brick homes. They enjoy life, playing baseball, basketball and drilling.

The high sea wall at Galveston is an interesting piece of work, with its miles and miles of sea side drives on the Texas side, and the view of Houston appealed to me as being the most progressive of any that I visited. On my way to New Orleans I rode through miles of cattle ranches, sugar cane, and cotton plantations, peach orchards and oil fields. The country in that particular section is the most varied in the world. The peach blossoms were in full bloom and the sight of them stretched as far as one could see was very beautiful. I saw a few New Orleans old French quarters, but it is perhaps the most interesting place to visit in the south. It is kept up in its old quaint style merely as an attraction for tourists. Narrow streets with overhanging balconies are characteristic. Huge cobble stones are the only pavement. Here the great specialty is sea food, and the chefs in the French cafes can make anyone think he is hungry. In contrast to the old fashioned, unprogressive French quarters and the newer section of New Orleans shows great activity in civic affairs. I stood on a business corner on Canal street, which is, by the way, the widest business street in the United States, and as I looked around, I counted thirty-two street cars. There are five tracks running down the middle of this street, where once an old large canal ran. The filling of this canal is mainly responsible for the width of the street.

On my way home I stopped at Birmingham, Alabama, and had the good fortune of seeing an old Janesville boy, Roy Crissey, who works out of there for the Sprague Warner people of Chicago. On account of the adjacent coal and iron mines Birmingham, at the present time, is the fastest growing city in the south.

For a winter trip I believe that a visit to New Orleans and the larger cities of Texas proves as interesting as any that can be taken within the confines of the United States.

The thief who entered the office of S. W. EVERY WIFE'S DUTY

Watch Husband's Hair. If Thin Or Full of Dandruff Insist On His Using Parisian Sage.

Men give but little thought to the care of the hair. Not until the first bald spot appears do they really take notice. If your husband's hair is getting thin; if he has dandruff or itching scalp, take immediate action—do not let him become a bald head. Get from any drug or toilet counter a 50 cent bottle of Parisian Sage. The first application stops itching head and removes dandruff—the great hair destroyer. A little Parisian Sage rubbed well into the scalp for a few nights will work wonders. When the hair stops falling and the new growth appears a frequent use of this invigorating tonic is all that is needed to make the hair perfectly healthy, thick and beautiful.

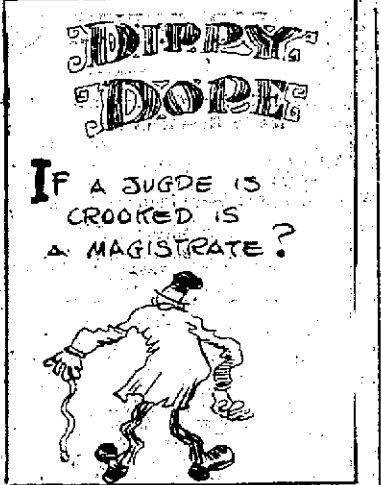

Surely try Parisian Sage. Smith Drug Co. sell it with an agreement to refund your money if not satisfied. It's a delightful hair tonic for men and women.

Consumption Takes 350 People Daily

In the United States and the deadly germs claim more victims in cities than in rural districts; due no doubt to the increased number of indoor workers in confining quarters and their lack of sunshine.

Tubercular germs always attack when the system is weakened from colds or sickness, overwork, overstrain, confining duties or any drain which has reduced the resistive forces of the body. But nature always provides a corrector and the best physician emphasizes that during changing climate our blood should be kept rich and pure and active by taking Scott's Emulsion after meals; the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion warms the body by enriching the blood—it peculiarly strengthens the lungs and upbuilds the resistive forces of the body to avoid colds and prevent consumption.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or nervous, Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known; it builds energy and strength and is totally free from alcohol or any stupefying drug—every druggist has it. 13-106 U. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

Vitagraph Day Today

It will do you a world of good to see "Wild Beasts at Large" tonight. This two-part Vitagraph wild animal comedy is the funniest film of the season. It is from start to finish a scream. Imagine a train-wreck that permits a whole menagerie to escape and overrun a small town, and imagine all the funny things that could happen; then come prepared to see ten times as much fun as you would expect. The animals seem to be born comedians. The other two-part Vitagraph on the program is entirely different, a drama of contemporaneous life, one of Mr. Humphrey's masterly productions. This is "The Trap." The cast is unusual, including Edith Storey, E. K. Lincoln, L. Rogers Lytton, Harry Northrup and others.

Does Service Count?

If other things were simply equal, you know that The Big Store service would be worth a reasonable premium, because of the care and intelligence with which the public is served and merchandise delivered. But things are not simply equal. The Big Store merchandise is distinctly better than that of other stores. At the Big Store you get more intelligently selected Dry Goods, brought about by the Department System, each department head being able to make a close study of his or her particular line—which takes care of hundreds of little details, that the average merchant in trying to perform too many duties himself is not practically able to look after; better value in addition to service which, at every point, is the most skilled and intelligent we can possibly secure.

COUNCILMAN C. K. MILTMORE Re-nominated as Commissioner.

Tuesday, Miltmore received a handsome endorsement of 319, which was 156 ahead of his nearest opponent, James J. Sennett, who ran third on the ticket, was 146 votes behind Goodman. The total vote cast for commissioner was 2,567, nearly as large as that cast at the March 19, 1912, primary at which James A. Pathe was nominated as the first mayor of the city under the commission plan. The total vote for mayor on that occasion was 2,559.

Miltmore's Strength Consistent. Councilman Miltmore carried the First and Second wards, tied with Sennett in the Third, ran within ten votes of Goodman, who carried the Fourth, and was forty-four behind Goodman in the Fifth. Miltmore's support was consistent in every ward, which is hardly true of the other candidates.

PETER J. GOODMAN Nominated as Commissioner.

Goodman's showing in the Second and Third wards was rather weak, while Sennett's run in the Second and Fourth wards especially was a decided disappointment to his friends. Sennett, former alderman from the Third ward under the old common council system, ran fourth in the race, with a total vote of 409 in the five wards. He made his strongest showing in his own ward, where he polled 142 1/2 behind the two leaders.

Kelly and Scarcliff were out of the running with a nominal endorsement. Friends of the present city administration declare that Miltmore's ticket is also a creditable endorsement of the entire commission, and predict that the result of the spring election will clinch matters. Goodman's adherents, on the other hand, are also optimistic, and are already organizing for a strenuous two weeks' campaign.

The accompanying table shows the vote in the five wards for the six candidates for councilmen.

Miltmore	174	119	194	222	410	819

School Commissioner Fight. J. T. Hooper, superintendent of the state school for the blind, received 204 votes for the office of school commissioner at the April election, and will go on the ticket at the April election opposing Arthur M. Fisher, the present incumbent, who was re-nominated.

Hooper's nomination came as a surprise as he had not filed nomination papers and his name did not appear on the primary ballot. Judging from the returns there had evidently been a concerted effort throughout the city at the eleventh hour preceding the primary to secure enough electors to write in Hooper's name to City Attorney Dougherty the two hundred votes received is entirely sufficient.

That the women of the city were actively interested in the election is indicated by the fact that 109 suffragettes cast their ballots, the majority for Hooper, it is to be presumed. Fifty-three women voted in the third ward, twenty-two in the fourth, nineteen in the first, and fifteen in the second. None voted in the fifth.

Women Plan Campaign. It was hinted today that the women of the city are preparing for an active campaign in the school commissioner contest at the April election, so it is probable that the women's vote two weeks hence will be swelled perceptibly. This is the first time in the history of Janesville that the women have taken such an active interest in the school election and the matter was cause for considerable comment. Some held the suffrage movement responsible, while others were inclined to the view that the women were stirred wholly by an interest in the Janesville school situation.

Yesterday's vote on the school commissioner is as follows:

Ward.	Hooper.	Fisher.
First	20	290
Second	27	205
Third	96	341
Fourth	48	222
Fifth	13	137

First Ward Supervisor. Charles H. Sykes and Stewart B. Heddies, the present incumbents, were nominated to run for the office of supervisor of the first ward. The vote stood: Sykes, 236; Heddies, 213.

This portends a close fight at the spring election and is one of the few instances in which there has been a contest for the office of supervisor. In the other wards the present supervisors were all re-nominated: Marshall P. Richardson in the second, John P. Cullen in the third, J. A. Denning in the fourth, and Edward Rathen in the fifth.

CROWDS AT GAZETTE TO LEARN RESULTS

Lively Interest Shown Last Night in Outcome of Contest for Commissioner.

Soon after eight o'clock last evening crowds began to gather outside the Gazette office to wait for the primary election returns. Even before the polls closed the telephone wires were hot with messages from persons who were anxious to know who were nominated in the race for city commissioner.

Returns were slower in coming in than was expected and it was nearly nine o'clock when the first report was received from the Third ward. Four hours later, after a long wait, the politically wise, judging from the two largest precincts of the city, were certain that Miltmore and Goodman were the nominees. The first ward returns confirmed this conclusion, and there could be no doubt when the Second and Fifth clinched the outcome beyond doubt. The result was known at nine-thirty, and five or six hundred men who had waited for the Gazette office for an hour or more returned homeward without demonstration, for there was no issue involved in the primary which called for a wild outburst of popular feeling.

Discussion there was a plenty, however. Some expressed surprise that Sennett did not make a stronger run, especially in the Fourth ward. Miltmore's staunch support was expected, while Hall's poor showing was hardly anticipated by his supporters. Goodman polled a consistent vote throughout the city, and his friends were much pleased with the showing. They predict a hot fight at the election and will organize their forces at once.

CIVIC COUNCIL HAS STARTED ITS WORK

MANY MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE DISCUSSED AT FIRST MEETING.

LOCAL NEEDS STUDIED

Effectuated Last Evening—Another Meeting Will Be Held Very Soon to Elect Permanent Officers.

Last evening at the city hall the proposed civic council composed of the executive board of the Civic League, an organization composed of the delegates of the various women's clubs of the city and delegates chosen from all of the various men's clubs of the city, effected the organization and will later meet to complete their formal organization and elect officers.

A. C. Krotz, who represented the Twilight Club, was chosen as temporary chairman. Among the questions discussed was the beautifying of the bank of Rock river from the Milwaukee street bridge to Court street. Garbage collection and the dental clinics for school children. The following report was made of the results of the recent inspection of the schools:

"The free dental inspection of all schools in the city has been completed. The total number of defects of different kinds was not too numerous. A full report will be made, however, and some interesting statistics will be furnished. The record cards are and have at all times been in the hands of the city nurse, Miss Anderson. These cards are school property and will remain in the school. The prospects for a free dental clinic are very favorable, providing that suitable place and necessary equipment are furnished for same. Some small room with good light is essential. Heat and city water and a lavatory are necessary, of course. A full dental equipment will not be required. A fair second-hand outfit could be obtained for between $250 and $350. Care should be taken that a substantial outfit be obtained. Material could be provided to last a few months for about $75.

"Most of the dentists in Janesville have expressed willingness to donate one-half day of their time each month for free dental service to those children who are unable to pay for same. The work will consist of cement and silver alloy fillings, extractions and extractions when needed. Gold work will not be attempted on account of the expense and time required for same. The greatest number of children cared for should be the main object. The dentists will show the number of operations done each month, together with the names of the children operated on, so we would know just what is being done at the time.

"The children that would receive free services are to be recommended by the school authorities, including teachers and visiting city nurse. A card should be given the children when they leave the building and then card, when dated, will admit them to the clinic and answers for an excuse to return to school. The hour they leave the clinic might be marked on the card so the teacher might know at what time they left the clinic."

Aside from the executive committee of the Civic League the following delegates from the various men's clubs of the city were present: M. P. Richardson, Twentieth Ward Club; P. Winslow, United Brethren Brotherhood; Dr. E. E. Loomis, Methodist Brotherhood; O. D. Antisell, Baptist Brotherhood; O. E. Oestreich, Congregational Brotherhood; Frank M. Joyce, National Order of Eagles; W. E. Blair, Rock River Encampment; F. P. Starr, Modern Woodmen; Rev. W. A. Goebel, Catholic Order of Foresters. Aside from these gentlemen, Charles Snyder, Gardner Kavalee, R. M. Bostwick, S. P. Purnell and J. H. Richards, Rev. Parson, Dr. Clara Northington and Edward Amerpol were in attendance.

The lodges which have been requested to send delegates and which have not yet named them are The Knights of Columbus, all of the Masonic Lodges, except the Rock River Encampment, both lodges of the Odd Fellows, the Elks, the Lakota Club, the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the Unique Club, the Presbyterian Brotherhood, and these it is expected will be represented when the formal organization takes place.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE IN TRAIN ACCIDENT

Edward Barry, Northwestern Switchman, Injured From Falling Off Moving Box Car.

Being caught by the running boards on the switch engine saved the life of Edward Barry, switchman on the Northwestern road, when he fell from the top of a box car between the engine which was backing, the car from the switch track across from the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul station shortly before three o'clock this afternoon.

The engine was pulling the long car slowly and when the wheels of the freight car struck the switch frog, Barry, who was standing near the edge of the car, was jolted off. Fortunately he fell to one side of the running board, which prevented him from being crushed by the wheels and was dragged several feet before the locomotive was stopped. He was bruised, but not seriously injured, and was taken to his home on the corner of Arch and Palm streets.

OVER FIVE HUNDRED PAID FOR FOX PELT

Kennedy and Lake Purchase Valuable Silver Fox Pelt of Trapper From Middle Inlet.

A perfect specimen of the rare and costly silver fox as purchased by Kennedy and Lake, Janesville fur dealers, secured from Frank Ellis, a northern trapper, the pelt bringing a figure over five hundred dollars. The fox was caught at Middle Inlet in the northeastern part of the state and probably is the only one trapped in Wisconsin during the last year.

The fox purchased by the Janesville dealers is declared to be a perfect specimen, being in prime condition with a fine quality of glossy guard hairs which give the fur its great beauty. The hide is four feet six inches in length, the tail measuring eighteen inches. The head and shoulders are a lustrous black and on the back the silver guard hairs with the black tips are prominent.

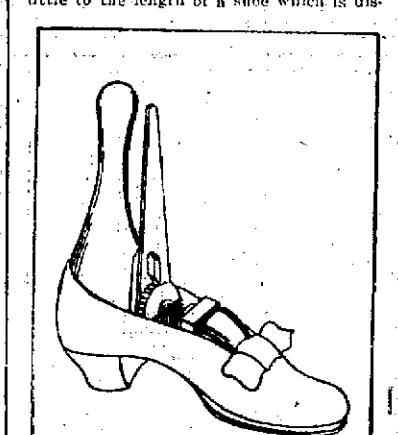

A silver fox is a freak fur and it is estimated that not over a thousand are caught in a year in North America. The most of them are trapped in British Columbia, and it is seldom that one is caught in Wisconsin. This royal fur is valuable because of its rareness and the fact that it is almost impossible to imitate the shading of the silver hairs with the black making it different from other pelts.

MAKES ROOM FOR THE TOES

An Implement Which Adds a Little to the Length of a Short Shoe.

A suit of clothes or a pair of shoes must be worn a while before it is possible to declare that it is a fit. This is particularly true of the shoes, for what will seem to be a very comfortable shoe piece of footgear will after a few days' use permit the foot to slip forward just enough to offer a slight pressure against the toe. This frequently is the cause of considerable pain and is also exceedingly hard on the stockings for the constant pressure wears the fabric away in a short time.

As a relief to those who find themselves thus afflicted, a shoemaker-inventor of the shoe-making trade has designed and patented a device to add a little to the length of a shoe which is discovered, too late, to be a trifle too short. The new implement consists of two main parts, one fitting in the toe and the other shaped to the backstay. The two parts are joined by a threaded rod with a nut attached and a means for operating the same. When the apparatus is placed in shoe and extended by means of the lever provided a pressure is exerted on the toe and heel which results that the length of the shoe is quite perceptibly increased.

BRITISH MINISTER WOULD RESIGN POST
IN ULSTER TROUBLE

statements uttered in the press and elsewhere made my position clear, I informed the general officers that I would hold each of them individually responsible to see that there was no conduct in their commands subversive to discipline. I told them they could let it be clearly understood that any such conduct would be dealt with under the king's regulation.

"If any army officer should tender his resignation I told the generals that they should ask for his reasons, and if he indicated that he desired to choose which order he would obey, I would submit to the king that the officer should be removed from the army."

Instructions to Paget.

This document was followed by a letter dated March 14, from the war office to General Sir Arthur Paget, commander-in-chief in Ireland in which Sir Arthur was informed:

"In consequence of reports received by the government that attempts be made in various parts of Ireland by evil disposed persons to obtain possession of arms and ammunition and other government stores, it is considered advisable that you should at once take special precautions for safeguarding the depots and other places where arms and stores are kept as you may think advisable."

"It appears that Armagh, Omagh, Carrickfergus and Enniskillen are insufficiently guarded, being specially liable to attack."

Orders were also given to the officers in command of barracks where arms and ammunition were stored to leave them that they would be held responsible for the safety of that property and that such places never should be left unguarded. It is pointed out that this order referred to the whole of Ireland.

General Paget telegraphed to the war office on March 20 that all the officers of the 5th Royal Irish Lancers stationed in Dublin had resigned with the exception of two. He said he feared that the same conditions prevailed among the officers of the 16th Queen's Lancers, stationed at the Curragh and that the men would refuse to move.

That same evening General Paget telegraphed to the war office that the brigadier general and 57 officers of the third cavalry brigade at the Curragh prefer to accept dismissal if they are ordered to the north. The war office replied to General Paget:

"You are authorized to suspend from duty any senior officers who have tendered their resignations or in any other manner have disputed your authority. The resignations of all officers should be refused."

The war office also said that other officers were being sent to relieve Brigadier General Hubert Gough, commander of the third cavalry brigade and the commanding officers of the 5th and the 16th Lancers who were ordered to proceed to London.

Brigadier General Hubert Gough, in reporting the feeling in his brigade—as the result of a communication from the war office conveyed to him verbally by General Sir Arthur Paget—said:

"The officers of my brigade are unanimous in the opinion that further information is essential before they should be called upon at such short notice to take decisions so vitally affecting their whole future and especially that a clear definition should be given of the terms 'duty as ordered' and 'active operations' in Ulster."

Question of Duty.

"If such duty consists of the maintenance of order and preservation of property all the officers including myself are prepared to carry out that duty. If, however, the duty involves the initiation of active military operations against Ulster, the following officers would respectfully and under protest prefer to resign."

The names of fifty-six officers of the 3rd cavalry brigade follow.

After an interview with Col. Seely, Brigadier Hubert Gough wrote to the war office:

"One of the first questions asked by our officers will be in the event of the present home rule bill becoming law can we be called upon to enforce it in Ulster under the provisions of maintaining law and order?"

"This point should be made quite clear; otherwise there will be renewed misconception."

Col. Seely's Reply.

In reply to this Brigadier General Gough was given a letter initiated by Col. Seely as secretary for war and by Field Marshal Sir John French, in which he was authorized to inform the officers as follows:

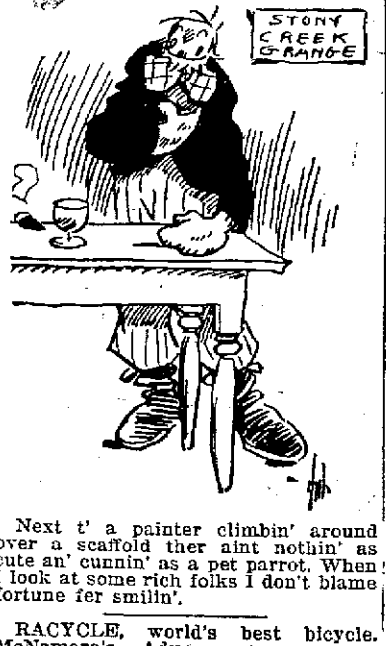

"The army council is satisfied that the incident which has arisen in regard to their resignation was due to a misunderstanding."

The letter continues that it is the duty of soldiers to obey commands for the protection of life and property and in support of the civil power in the event of disturbance and the army council is glad there never has been and never will be any question of disobeying such orders. It continues:

"The government must retain its right to use all the forces of the crown in Ireland or elsewhere to maintain order and support the civil power in the ordinary execution of their duty, but it has no intention whatever of taking advantage of this right in order to crush political opposition to the policy or the principles of the home rule bill."

SICK, SOUR STOMACH,
INDIGESTION OR GAS

Take "Pape's Diapiesin" and in five minutes you'll wonder what became of misery in stomach.

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother.
If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches, belch gases and acids and eructate undiges-ted food; breath foul, tongue coated —just take a little Pape's Diapiesin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapiesin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapiesin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it di-gests food and sets things straight, so easily and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with weak, dis-ordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

Mrs. F. H. Fuller is visiting in Be-

AFTER COUGHING TWO YEARS

Waycross, Ga., Woman Found Relief in Vinol.

Did you ever cough for a week? Then just think how distressing it must be to have a cough hang on for two years.

Mrs. D. A. McGee, Waycross, Ga., says: "I had a very heavy cold which settled into a chronic cough which kept me awake nights for fully two years, and felt tired all the time. The effect of taking your cod liver and iron remedy, Vinol, is that my cough is gone. I can now get a good night's rest and I feel much stronger in every way. I am 74 years old."

It is the combined action of the medicinal elements of the cod's livers aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron which makes Vinol so efficient for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis—at the same time building up the weakened, run-down system.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. Smith Drug Co., Druggists, Janesville, Wis.

P. S.—If you have any skin trouble try Saxo Salve. We guarantee it.

The Valiants of Virginia

By
Hallie Erminie
Rives
(Mrs. Post Wheeler)

Illustrated by Laura Stott

Copyright, 1914, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.

"I should say so!" agreed Fargo. "Do you know I used to be afraid my Katharine had a leaning toward him. But thank God, she's a sensible girl!"

Dusk had fallen that evening when John Valiant's Panhard turned into a cross-street and circled into the yawning mouth of his garage. A little later, the bulldog at his heels, he ascended the steps of his club, where he lodged—he had disposed of his bachelor apartments a fortnight ago. The cavernous seats of the lounge, were all occupied, but he did not pause as he strode through the hall. He took the little pile of letters the boy handed him at the desk and went slowly up the stairway.

"It's Very Good Living Abroad. There's a Boat Leaving Tomorrow."

He wandered into the deserted library and sat down, tossing the letters on the magazine-littered table. He had suddenly remembered that it was his twenty-fifth birthday.

In the reaction from the long strain he felt physically spent. He thought of what he had done that afternoon with a sense of satisfaction. A reversal of public judgment, in his own case, had not entered his head. He knew his world—its comfortable faculty of forgetting, and the multitude of sins that wealth may cover. To preserve at whatever personal cost the one noble monument his father's genius had reared, and to right the wrong that would cast its gloomy shadow on his name—that had been his only thought. What he had done would have been done no matter what the outcome of the investigation. But now, he told himself, no one could say the act had been wrong from him. That, he fancied, would have been his father's way.

He smiled—a slow smile of reminiscence—for there had come to him at that moment the dearest of all those memories—a play of his childhood.

He saw himself seated on a low stool, watching a funny old clock with a moon-face, whose smiling lips curved up like military mustaches, and wishing the lazy long hands would hurry. He saw himself stealing down a long corridor to the door of a big room strewn with books and papers, that through some baleful and mysterious spell could not be made to open at all hours. When the hands pointed right, however, there was the "Open Sesame"—his own secret knock, two fierce, twin raps, with one little lone, some one afterward—and this was unfailing. Safe inside, he saw himself standing on a big, polar-bear-skin, the door, tight-locked against all comers, an expectant baby figure with his little hand clasped in his father's. The white rug was the magic entrance to the Never-Never Country, known only to those two.

He could hear his own shrill treble:

"Wishing-Home, Wishing-Home, where are you?"

Then the deeper voice (quite unrecognizable as his father's) answering: "Here I am, Master; here I am!" And instantly the room vanished and they were in the Never-Never Land, and before them reared, the biggest house in the world, with a row of white pillars across its front a mile high.

John Valiant felt an odd beating of the heart and a tightening of the throat, for he saw a scene that never faded from his memory. It was the one hushed and horrible night, when dread things had been happening that he could not understand, when a big man with "gold eye-glasses, who smelled of some curious sick-sweet perfume, came and took him by the hand and led him into a room where his father lay in bed, very gray and quiet.

The white hand on the coverlet had beckoned to him and he had gone close up to the bed, standing very straight, his heart beating fast and hard.

"John!" the word had been almost a whisper, very tense and anxious, very distinct. "John, you're a little boy, and father is going away."

"To—Wishing-Home?"

The gray lips had smiled then, ever so little, and sadly. "No, John."

"Take me with you, father! Take me with you!"

His voice had trembled then, and he had had to gulp hard.

"Listen, John, for what I am saying is very important. You don't know what I mean now, but some time you will." The whisper had grown strained and frayed, but it was still distinct. "I can't go to the Never-Never Land. But you may sometime. If you . . . if you do, and if you find Wishing-Home, remember that the men who live in it . . . before you and me . . . were gentlemen. Whatever else they were, they were always that. Be . . . like them, John. . . will you?"

"Yes, father."

"The old gentleman with the eye-glasses had come forward then, hastily.

"Good-night, father—"

He had wanted to kiss him, but a strange cool hush had settled on the room and his father seemed all at once to have fallen asleep. And he had gone out, so carefully, on tiptoe, wondering, and suddenly afraid.

CHAPTER III.

The Turn of the Page.

John Valiant stirred and laughed, a little self-consciously, for there had been drops on his face.

Presently he took a check-book from his pocket and began to figure on the stub, looking up with a wry smile. "To come down to brass tacks," he muttered, "when I've settled everything (thank heaven, I don't owe my tailor!) there will be a little matter of twenty-eight hundred odd dollars, a passe-mot and my clothes between me and the bread-line!"

Everything else he had disposed of—everything but the four-footed comrade there at his feet. "But I'd not sell you, old chap," he said, softly; "not a single clasp of your friendly pink tongue; not for a beastly hundred thousand!"

He withdrew his caressing hand and looked again at the check-stub. Twenty-eight hundred! He laughed bleakly. Why, he had spent more than that at a month ago on a ball at Sherry's! This morning he had been rich; tonight he was poor!

What could he do? He could not remember a time when he had not had all that he wanted. He had never borrowed from a friend or been dunned by an importunate tradesman. And he had never tried to earn a dollar in his life; as to current methods of making a living, he was as ignorant as a Pueblo Indian.

He rose grimly and dragged his chair facing the window. The night was balmy and he looked down across the darker sea of reefs, barred like a gigantic checker-board by the shining lines of streets, to where the flashing electric signs of the theater district laid their wide swath of colored radiance. The manifold calls of the street and the buzz of trolleys made a dull tonal background, subdued and far-away.

To be outside! All that light and color and comfort and pleasure would hum and sparkle on just the same, though he was no longer within the circle of its effulgence—slaving perhap, he thought with a twisted smile, at some tawdry occupation that called for no experience, to pay for a meal in some second-rate restaurant and a pallet in some shabby-genteel hall bedroom, till his clothes were replaced, by ill-fitting "hand-me-downs"—till by wretched gradations he arrived finally at the status of the dime seat in the gallery and five-cent cigars!

There was one way back. It lay through the hackneyed gateway of marriage. Youth, comeliness and fine linen, in the world he knew, were a fair exchange for wealth any day. "Cutlet for cutlet"—the satiric phrase ran through his mind. Why not? Others did so. And as for himself, it perhaps need be no question of plain and spindled millions—there was Katharine Fargo!

He Had Suddenly Remembered That It Was His Twenty-Fifth Birthday.

In his heart John Valiant was aware, by those subtle signs which men and women alike distinguish, that while Katharine Fargo loved first and foremost her own wonderful person, he had been an easy second in her regard.

John Valiant looked down at the bulldog squatted on the floor, his eyes shining in the dimness. A little hot ripple had run over him. "Not on your life, Chum!" he said. "No shameless barter! There must be other things besides money and social position in this doddering old world, after all! We're going to begin something for ourselves, if it's only raising cabbages! And we're going to stand it without any baby-aching—the nurse never held our noses when we took our castor-oil!"

It was folded down, that old bright page. Flais had been written to the rose-colored chapter. And even as he told himself, he was conscious of a new rugged something that had been slowly dawning within him, a sense of courage, even of zeal, and a furious hatred of the self-pity that had wrenched him even for a moment.

He turned from the window, picked up his letters, and followed by the dog, went slowly up another flight to his room.

He tore open the letters abstractedly: the usual dinner-card or two, a tailor's spring announcement, a chronic serial from an exclamatory marble-quarrying company, a quarterly statement of a club house-committee. The last two missives bore a nondescript look.

One was small, with the name of a legal firm in its corner. The other was largish, corpulent and heavy, of stout Manila paper, and bore, down one side, a gaudy procession of postage stamps proclaiming that it had been registered.

"What's in that, I wonder?" he said to himself, and then, with a smile at the unmaelicious speculation, opened the smaller envelope.

"Dear Sir," began the letter, in the most uncompromisingly conventional of typewriting:

"Dear Sir:

"Enclosed please find, with title-deed, a memorandum opened in your name by the late John Valiant some years before his death. It was his desire that the services indicated in connection with this estate should continue, till this date. We hand you herewith our check for $236.20 (two hundred and thirty-six dollars and twenty cents), the balance in your favor, for which please send receipt. And oblige.

"Yours very truly,

"Emerson and Ball."

(Enclosure)

He turned to the memorandum. It showed a sizable initial deposit against which was entered a series of annual tax payments with minor disbursements credited to "inspection and care." The tax receipts were planned for the account.

The larger wrapper contained an unsealed envelope, across which was written in faded ink and in an unfamiliar dashing, slanting handwriting, his own name. The envelope contained a creased yellow parchment, from between whose folds there clumped and fluttered down upon the floor a long flatish object wrapped in a paper, a newspaper clipping and a letter.

Puzzled he unfolded the crackling thing in his hands. "Why," he said half aloud, "it's a deed made over to me." He overran it swiftly. "Part of an old Colony grant . . . a plantation in Virginia, twelve hundred odd acres, given under the hand of a vice-regal governor in the sixteenth century. I had no idea titles in the United States went back so far as that!" His eye fled to the end.

"It was my father's! What could he have wanted of an estate in Virginia? It must have come into his hands in the course of business."

He flicked up the newspaper clipping. It was worn and broken in the folds as if it had been carried for months in a pocketbook.

"It will interest readers of this section of Virginia (the paragraph began) to learn, from a recent transfer received for record at the County Clerk's office, that Danory Court has passed to Mr. John Valiant, minor—"

He turned the paper over and found a date; it had been printed in the year of the transfer to himself, when he was six years old—the year his father had died.

"John Valiant, minor, the son of the former owner.

Dinner Stories

Fourteen-year-old Frank Marsh, when arraigned in a Passaic (N. J.) police court for truancy the other day, soberly gave this explanation:

"I was sitting in a large chair in the public library reading when a very stout woman came in. She picked up a book and then stepped backward a few feet and sat right down on me. I did not dare holler, because the signs in the reading room say you will be put out if you make any noise. She kept me there for an hour, judge."

"What?" gasped Judge Costello. Then he let the lad go.

The smart young housewife went to market one morning to buy some geese and found five hanging outside the shop.

"I am a boarding house keeper," she remarked with a smile. "Will you pick out for me the three of those geese that are loudest?"

The man laughed knowingly, and removed the loudest.

"What?" gasped Judge Costello. Then he let the lad go.

obeyed. "Thank you," said the woman, briskly. "Now, I'll take the other two."

Melting Aluminum.

While charcoal should be invariably used in melting brass and bronze, states the Brass World, it is not only useless in melting aluminum, but dangerous. Aluminum is so light that the charcoal is apt to become intermingled with it, and the castings made from it will have small specks and pieces in them.

Her Wants.
"Does your wife want the vote?" "No. She wants a larger town house, a villa on the seacoast, and a new limousine car every six months. I'd be pleased most to death if she could fix her attention on a small matter like the vote."—New Orleans Picayune.

and they show the effect of unnatural sufferings—of headaches, back-aches, dizziness, hot flashes, pains in lower limbs, pains in groins, bearing-down sensations.

These symptoms indicate that Nature needs help. Overwork, wrong dressing, lack of exercise, and other causes have been too much for nature—and outside aid must be called upon to restore health and strength.

Want Ad. Results

"Where is the piano you used to have, is that it?" said a caller to her hostess. "We sold our piano, said the woman addressed, at a good price, and bought a new one."

The caller looked her polite, but curious surprise. "You see it was this way," said the hostess, "We were thinking of moving, so, as we hated to move the piano, we run an ad to sell it. Gracious, we were swamped with answers. You've no idea how many people are looking for pianos; that is, until you run an ad." "We sold our piano at a really good price, then found we were not to move for at least a year. As I could not look forward to a year without a piano I used the method to procure one that I had used so effectively to sell ours—I advertised for one. This one was purchased and after all the business transactions are over I find myself with fifteen dollars in cash as the result of the want ad column. I never would have bought or sold had it not been for them. They put me in touch with the public."

What the want ad column did for this woman it stands ready to do for you, if you are willing to try its merits. Are you?
